Starring: Shahrukh Khan, Priyanka Chopra, Farhan Akhtar. Director: Aditya Chopra. Screenplay: Shonali Bose, Khadijah Khan. Genre: Romantic Comedy. It's a love story of two married couples who belong to different communities. Shahrukh plays a Muslim cop. He lives in the beautiful city of Hyderabad with his wife, Priyanka Chopra, Farhan Akhtar, with their respective spouses. Priyanka Chopra as a doctor and Shahrukh Khan as a cop. It's quite a love story. Whether its Priyanka and Shahrukh or you have Sharmine Arora - a mimicry of Kareena Kapoor (hmm, I can have any of them as any part of my body if I am a disabled person), but what I am saying is that the makers should have made the adaptation better. I never knew that Kabhi Khushi Kabhie Gham hai, the comedy was in the name of Priyanka Chopra. I thought it was Shahrukh. I never saw how the two couples connected, when the two couples were separated. There is not much to the writing, not much to this film. I expected more. I expected more humor, more romance, more development, but unfortunately, it failed. I liked Farhan, but not enough for the character. Shahrukh is a good actor, but he's not sufficient. I really recommend that you do not watch this film. I would rather recommend you to watch the TV series on Star Plus, Star World. This is the only sensible way to watch this movie.
